Sales Tax To Start On July 1

Frankfort — The Kentucky Senate Wednesday passed a 3 per cent retail sales tax estimated to yield from $90,000,000 to $120,000,000 a year. The vote was an easy 28-to-8 victory for the Administration of Governor Combs.

Senate enactment completed legislative action on House Bill 75, it having passed the lower chamber Friday by a vote of 84 to 9. The measure now goes to the Governor for his signature.

This new tax bill's primary purpose is to finance a bonus for Kentucky veterans of the last four wars. Secondary purpose is to upgrade education, welfare, parks, and public assistance.

The new bill carries a reduction of about $21,000,000 a year in personal-income tax. This is a 40 per cent reduction in yield.

But there will be six months of full taxation on both sales and income. The sales-tax bill is effective July 1, and the income reduction is not effective until January 1, 1961.

Jury Refuses To Award Damages In 'Pony Ride' Case

If a rented horse falls and injures its rider, the owner of the horse is not liable for damages, that was the verdict of a jury in Marshall Circuit Court last week.

Fred Johnson had sued Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Majors, who operate the pony rides at Kentucky Dam Village State Park. He said he rented the horse, and that the animal reared up, fell on him and then "sat" on him. He said his injuries required him to be in a cast several months.

The jury held that Mr. Johnson, who asked for $25,000 damages, was not due any judgment from Mr. and Mrs. Majors.

A three-way automobile collision resulted in a jury awarding $320 to Bill Smothers, one of the persons involved in the crash. Smothers had sued Gary Dale Roberts, Louise Flynn who was the third person involved in the wreck.

Both teams are in excellent condition; as excellent as you can get from working out in swivel office chairs and eating ice box pies. And they promise to give the referees, especially, a hard way to go.

Scorekeepers have not been selected. But anybody who can count to 10 will qualify as a scorekeeper.

Rules will be made up as game progresses.

The fans may wonder if they are watching a basketball game or a slap-stick comedy, but they will have more fun than they have at most sports events.

Business Men Say Profits Off

District Highway Engineer Jack Carson and his assistants will be invited to a meeting to be held in Benton soon to discuss the city's new one-way streets.

This decision was made Tuesday night at a City Council meeting attended by a couple of dozen Main Street business men and other citizens who voiced their opposition to the one-way streets.

The Main Street business men, especially those on the north end of the street, said they were losing money because of the one-way traffic. Some said their losses were as much as 50 percent because half of the traffic had been moved to Poplar Street.

Dale Leneave cited figures to show his gasoline sales had taken a big dive during January, first full month of the new one-way traffic. Bill Turner said sales at his grocery store were dropping. Thomas Downing said he had lost the trade of the early morning motorists who work at Calvert City. These motorists now use Poplar Street instead of Main Street to go to work.

On the other hand, Guy McGreggor, Shell oil distributor who operates filling stations on both ends of Main street, said his January sales were above those of last year. McGreggor, however, was not inclined to favor the new one-way traffic.

Pal Howard, motel operator, said his motel depended entirely on tourists and that the one-way traffic would damage his business greatly.

Roy Boyd also voiced opposition to the new one-way traffic. Merlyn Wyatt, a Poplar Street resident, said heavy traffic on Poplar was a danger to young children.

All of them favored a return to two-way traffic. Suggestions for the return of two-way traffic included no parking at any time on either side of main Street, no parking on one side of Main Street, cutting back of the courthouse yard and unloading zones for big trucks.

Pal Howard finally suggested that highway engineers be brought to Benton for a conference. This, the council and the visitors agreed would be a good idea.

Noise Is Protested

A group of citizens from West 9th Street protested the noise and profanity coming from a truck parking lot on West 9th.

An out-of-town firm had rented the vacant lot from Namaan Duke as storage space for trucks. Residents of the neighborhood complained that the truck drivers used the lot late at night and early in the morning, and were noisy and profane. They said the lot also had been churned into a sloppy mess during the wet weather and that the trucks carried the mud and mess into the neighborhood streets.

The foreman of the company was called before the City Council. He explained that the use of the lot had passed, that the company would operate here only about one more month and that he had made a deal to keep his big trucks overnight at the Leneave Gulf Station.

City Attorney Pal Howard was instructed by the City Council to draw up three separate ordinances regulating the use and rental of residential parking lots. The Council will act on these ordinances at its next meeting.

Sewer Line Promised

City Council Monday night also promised to run a new sewer line to a section of Cole's Addition.

The line was requested by Rollie Stratton and James West, who own lots and houses in the area.

The Council said it would obtain easements for the sewer line and could build it when funds become available, probably in the spring.

CONSERVATION IS YOUR PROTECTION

CONTOURING

Contour-plowing and terracing can do much to check the run-off of soil nutrients from sloping land.

GOOD DRAINAGE

On many farms, fertile, level cropland, too wet for profitable farming, can be made to produce up to twice as much by proper drainage.

CROP ROTATION

Strategic rotation of crops to avoid depletion of specific nutrients can help maintain the productivity of the soil for profitable farming.

OTHER MEASURES

Cover crops, strip crops, legumes, and stubble mulch are some of the other tools of soil conservation. Each will help if used in the right place and in the right way.

Don't let the precious productivity of your land be washed away by erosion. Practice the proven methods of soil conservation to protect the future of your farm! This project calls for action now.

Erosion takes a heavy toll on many farms. As the soil is depleted of essential nutrients, its productivity goes steadily down, and farm profits dwindle to the vanishing point. Modern soil conservation, based on research and farmer experience all over the country, will safeguard your farm's earning power.

Soil Conservation not only helps to protect and improve the land, but helps lower the cost of farm production. For both the present and future, it pays off handsomely!

15 Tips For Safe Winter Driving

Winter brings many good things: beautiful snow, winter sports and exciting holidays. But the cold weather season carries greater driving responsibilities than any time of the year.

The following check points show areas of your car that should have attention before any extensive winter driving. The House of Seagram which offers these tips as a public service, also offers the sound advice that "When It's One For The Road, Be Sure It's Coffee."

Check (1) battery, for condition and charge. (2) The ignition system's points and plugs should be checked. (3) Make sure automatic choke is operating properly.

Proper thermostat (4) should be installed, along with radiator anti-freeze. The fuel system (5) should also have anti-freeze as needed, and (6) radiator hoses should be checked for defects.

A change to winter-weight oil (7) is needed, and the fan belt (8) should be inspected and adjusted. The car should also be lubricated (9).

Anti-freeze is also needed for the windshield washer (10), and (11) the brake lining hoses and fluid should be checked. All lights (12) must be in proper working condition, as must (13) wipers and defrosters.

This is the time to (14) mount snow tires and carry skid chains, and to have a thorough check (15) of the exhaust system.

At the turn of the century, railroad tycoons like Vanderbilt, Whitney and Gould traveled in luxurious railroad cars built to their specifications. One such mansion on rails—the Alicia—was built for Henry Morrison Flagler, the founder of the Florida East Coast Railway.

A perfectionist, Flagler decorated his "Alicia" in rich satinwood and colorful linen curtains appropriate to Florida's climate. Other decorations included solid gold table service, working fireplaces, rare wood carvings.

A second Flagler rolling mansion, the "Rambler", was among the first railroad cars to cross the Florida Keys. The "Rambler" was built in 1886 at a cost of $70,000. It is now being restored and will be exhibited at the Henry Morrison Flagler Museum at Whitehall Mansion in Palm Beach, Florida. The museum is set to open early in 1960.

The Life Of A Senate Lady

By MRS. JOHN SHERMAN COOPER

Every year I have written you about the Senate Ladies Red Cross Chapter and will do so again now as some of you may not have seen my letters before. This group meets each Tuesday in the Old Senate Office Building, to make bandages and children's clothes for the Armed Services. Every wife of a Senator is automatically a member of the group and continues to be so whether or not her husband is in office.

The wife of the vice president of the United States is always the president, and I am told that we are the only non-partisan organization whose husbands are in the Senate.

It is only at Senate Ladies that you have the opportunity of associating week after week with practically every one of the Senate wives. We wear Red Cross uniforms with a well over our heads and a placard with our names and the name of our state around our necks for the convenience of the newer members.

This is really a great help as I find Senate wives have to be memorized in three ways: with a hat, and with a Red Cross veil on their heads. Senate wives, like everyone else, expect to be recognized at sight.

In 1957, the first day I went to Senate Ladies, I was very surprised when person after person stopped me in the corridor to say "Good morning" and asked about my wonderful husband. After this had happened eight or ten times to my great surprise, I began to think that I had become a national figure as everyone seemed to know my name.

It was only when I arrived at Senate Ladies and saw everyone else's name hanging around their necks that I looked down on my own uniform and saw "Mrs. Cooper, Kentucky," written about four inches high, that I understood the reason for this unexpected triumph.

Besides the excellent work the Senate Ladies do for the Red Cross, I find that meeting every week is a lesson in politics, which we are never expected to discuss, but where I can learn more about the political climate of Washington than any other place I know.

Another women's group, of which I am vice president, is the Republican Congressional Wives Club. We meet every month on Friday morning at the different members' houses for coffee and have a variety of programs. Last week we had a special meeting at the house of Mrs. Leslie Arendt, wife of the Republican Whip in the House, for Mrs. Eisenhower. The First Lady, who is tremendously gay and friendly, arrived wearing a strawberry-red jersey dress and hat, and stayed with us for well over an hour so we all had the opportunity of having an informal visit with her.

There is always something very exciting about the visit of the wife of our Commander-in-Chief and every lady had dressed for the occasion. Mrs. Arendt's house was dressed up too. Her flowers were beautifully arranged bright bunches of Darwin tulips, and a delicious buffet was served which included ice cream strawberries the color of the First Lady's dress, which were something new, good and pretty. We all sat with Mrs. Eisenhower around the findliness of an open fire and our members were delighted with ourselves and the party. We kept congratulating each other on how well everything had been arranged.

MRS. Homemaker's FORUM

by JANE STEWART

To keep children from locking bedroom or bathroom doors accidentally, fill the bolt holes in the plates with putty. When you want to use the lock, it will be easy to remove the putty.

Vacuum cleaner attachments are so seldom handy when you need them that one vacuum cleaner company has simplified the cleaning to the point that only two attachments are required to clean the entire home. The Electrolux Cleaner has one combination tool for upholstery or, turned the other way, for dusting. The rug tool becomes a floor brush when reversed.

To prevent your steam iron from rusting on the bottom during hot, moist seasons, try this. When you finish ironing and the iron is warm, set it on several folds of wax paper (a bread wrapper will do) and let it cool. When the iron is heated the next time, the wax paper will loosen and come off.

If you are taking a trip with the baby, be sure to take along some paper cups in which to mix cereal for his breakfast. This will save a trip to a washroom to wash a dish, for the cups can be thrown away.

Rinse out soiled and "night" diapers as soon as possible in cold water to avoid unpleasant odors and to prevent "cooking" the stain.

Nutrition Study Held At Gilbertsville School

A nutrition study contest has just been completed at Gilbertsville Elementary School in the 4-5-6 grades. This project was under the supervision of Melodean Hicks, supervisor, school lunch program, and teachers, Mrs. Katie Tracy and Mrs. Anita Knott.

Purpose of this study was to teach the children the foods needed in their daily diet and to attempt to get them to eat a balanced diet. A record was kept of all food eaten for two weeks, and points were given for each food. The essential foods received higher points and points were deducted if they were omitted. Also extra points were given if all food was eaten on plate in dunchroom.

As a result of this contest the students wrote a short statement of how the contest had helped them. Some of these comments are:

"I learned to eat breakfast. At first I thought I just couldn't eat any breakfast, then the next morning I ate a little. By the next week I was eating a good breakfast and now I get up and eat every morning." Vannie Lou Marshall.

"I didn't drink as many soft drinks. I ate more of the right foods and I drank more milk. It was fun and it helped me a lot." Ronnie Dexter.

"I have learned to eat more breakfast. Also I learned to drink fruit juices and to eat vegetables." Mary Frances Tracy.

"I learned to eat less sweets and to eat the right kind of foods and to eat everything on my plate at lunch." Wanda Evans.

"I learned to eat carrots and other good food, and less candy." Josephine Kennedy.

"It has taught me to eat other things instead of candy and sweets and the food has made me feel better." Roger Glenn.

Prizes will be awarded to winners at the PTA meeting Feb. 6 at 7 p. m. First prizes consisting of $1 bills will be given to Royce Beard, 4th grade, and Bruce Winslow, 6th grade, who received the highest scores in each room. Second prizes consisting of half dollars will be given to Steve Majors, 5th grade, David Olson, 6th grade, Leanna Combs, 4th grade, and Bernice Faye Harris, 4th grade, who received the next two highest scores in each room.

The Man Behind Perry Mason

Erle Stanley Gardner...with publication in January of his 100th book, The Case of the Waylaid Wolf, is unique as an author. Over 110,000,000 copies of his books have been sold in the U.S. and Canada alone—a record many times the height of Mt. Everest!

An ardent outdoorsman, Gardner lives a Southern California ranch life. A benefactor to mankind as well as nature, he has brought hope and freedom through the "Court of Last Resort"—to many wrongly convicted citizens.

Republicans blame it on the Democrats and viser versa. And while they're arguing over whether the barn burned down or burned up, then Russians are busy building a bigger barn. In a manner of speaking, Mister Editor, you might say that we conduct our foreign policy on the tweedledee and tweedledum system, with maybe the dum getting a little the best of it.

As general thing, I figure the two-party system is the best form of Government, but sometimes I wish we could get a third party and put all the screwballs from the other two parties in it, then the Democrats and Republicans could get down to business and get somepun done. As it is, our Congressmen has a pritty hard time of it, a heap of the time making the right move at the wrong time, like the girl that hurt her back trying to get into her girdle. She was wiggling when she should've been wagging.

But it'smighty comforting to get our new Congress back in session. They operate the biggest give-away program on earth. A feller at the country store said Saturday night that the Lord helps those who helped themselves but that Congress would help anybody. Incidental, I see where we got four members in the new Congress that can play the guitar. When I was a boy, if you saw a feller with a guitar strong around his neck you knowed he was a wandering bum. Today he can either be a television star with two yachts or a Congressman with four different plans for reducing taxes—in a election year.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ned.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where Senator Kefauver says we ought to have a full investigation of the "integrity" of our Government. Most folks back home would be satisfied if they'd just find it. When things are going bad in Washington, the Republicans claim the Democrats is running it and the Democrats say the Republicans is at the wheel. It confirms a suspicion I've had for years, that most of the time it's running itself.

Judge had two fellers up fer being dead drunk and turning their car over. When he ask one of them just who was driving at the time, the feller scratched his head, studied for a spell and said: "Honest, Mister Judge, the last I recollect we was both riding in the back seat." When things ain't going good in the Congress, everybody in Washington is riding in the back seat. What we call our foreign policy, fer instance, has been wobbling around for years like a peanut in a punkin shell. The Special Reading: Psalm 57.

Sticking To It

PEOPLE get the strangest ideas about what it was like, nineteen years ago. When a thing has been a success for that length of time, people forget that it ever failed on the brink of failure. Things that have been honored for centuries, we think must have been held in honor from the start. When we look back on the name of a place long ago, we think of it as a very good thing. We suppose somebody was from the same

Dr. Foreman
The plain fact is, Christianity was not a religion in the old world. It was a new religion. It was a new world that felt "hungry for the gospel." It was not a world of "higher values" were sought after. In short, it was a very discouraging place to

Paul was specially true at Corinth. Paul started the Christian church going in that city. He has known so long as an apostle it is easy to over-rate his position at the time of his peak. If you had got one citizen Corinth, any citizen at all, by the corner of his toga and told him the Apostle, yes sir, a real thing, think of that, was coming to the city and intending to start a church, the Corinthian would have said something like:

"What's that? Paul? Never heard of one or another. Oh, a religionist is he? I hope he's not from the Jews. He is from Jerusalem?—a Jew?—Well, outside of being a superstitious lot, those people are rioters by nature. Mark words there'll be rioting in the square before that man's been long. You can have him."

Paul wouldn't exaggerate a bit. He would have had a riotous reception Paul might meet in Corinth—and he knew it. Some years afterward, when he came to Corinth in weakness (probably ill health), and in a daze and trembling—in modesty, he was all shook up.

The Doubtless
Doubtless Paul was determined to start a Christian church in that big booming indifference of Corinth. Not only were all the difficulties of making a new church in a large commercial city, Paul himself had good reason not feeling at his best. He had come from Athens, where (to say about it) he had been a school teacher and had been chased out more cities than he had been welcomed back to. He had not stayed long, he had to battle for a chance to be heard. Would he be better at Corinth? No doubt he would bet on it.

As a matter of fact, in spite of that did occur, just as you have expected, in spite of the spread, slandered, opposed, ridiculed, and he knew it, and won. When he left that he left behind him a Christian church which for all its faults had kept Christians to keep the church on its way all their lifetime.

Sticking to it
Paul kept Paul sticking to it. Partly his own stubbornness, partly having friends believed in him. But the main reason was that he was convinced he was doing God's work. People are discouraged about the church, in spite of ill health, active opposition, riots and all, and still find it in getting the "better class," like Corinth, the poverty of the church and its many problems. Paul did what he believed. He wanted him to do—stay till the job was done.

Paul surely wants his church to stand, today as at any time in the past. But it is likely to succeed only if the people who are responsible for it share, as Paul had something of the persistent God.

Sticking To It

Lesson for February 7, 1960

MOSES got the strangest ideas about what it was like, nineteen centuries ago. When a thing has been a success for that length of time, people forget that it ever failed. When a thing has been a failure for that length of time, people forget that it ever succeeded. When a thing has been a success for that length of time, people forget that it ever failed. When a thing has been a failure for that length of time, people forget that it ever succeeded.

Dr. Foreman

The plain fact is that the Christian church has been a success for that length of time, people forget that it ever failed. When a thing has been a failure for that length of time, people forget that it ever succeeded.

Uncle Ned - - - From Dogtown

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I never knewed until Saturday night that hound dogs was playing such an important part in the tax situation in this country.

But Clem Webster explained it plain and simple so's all of us could understand it.

Most of us attending the session at the country store Saturday night is a authority on hound dogs, and Clem allows as how them Congressmen is using "hound dog psychology" in spending our money.

A heap of you town folks don't understand why a hound dog will keep on barking all night, but there's a reason. A feller's dog thinks he hears somepon, so he starts barking. All the other dogs in the neighborhood hears him barking and think they got to help him out.

Sooner or later the dog that started the barking finds out he don't hear nothing no more and is ready to stop barking, but by now he's got to help his buddies. And round and round it goes for a couple hours.

Them Congressmen, claims Clem, don't call it hound dog psychology. They call it pork barrel legislation. A feller in one state thinks his voters has got to have a airport or a big dam across some river.

His buddies over in the next state thinks they got to help him out on account of pretty soon they're going to need a airport or somepon themselves. So they start barking to help out their buddy and afore long all the Congressmen is barking to help out each other.

By the time they git through barking the coffers is empty and we got to float another loan and find new taxes to finance it.

Now I ain't comparing our Congressmen with a hound dog, Mister Editor, but in a heap of ways, especially in spending money, they got a lot in common with a barking hound dog.

Incidental, Clem was complaining powerful Saturday night about his arthritis, says it always hits him worse in the winter. It put me to thinking about how things has changed in a man's life in 50 year.

The Bible says that the King of Babylon had a aching back and had to sleep on a board. What the King had was rheumatism and they ain't never found anything that would do it much good. Folks with aching backs still sleep on boards. About the only improvement they've made since the King's time was to change the name from rheumatist to arthritis.

That helped a lot. Fifty year ago Clem wouldn't dare tell nobody he had rheumatism, but now he tells everybody right out in the open about his arthritis.

Yep, science has done a heap to change the thinking of man. Fer instant, when I was a boy, folks was discussing the origin of man. Since the first atom bomb I ain't heard nothing about Darwin or monkeys and how man got here. Now all folks is thinking about is how he's gonna finish.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ned.

February Has Had Rough Time Keeping Its Days Together

February has had a rough time keeping its days together. But some U. S. taxpayers may wonder whether it was worth the trouble.

February wasn't even included in the year when Romulus, one of the founders of Rome, drew up the first Roman calendar, according to World Book Encyclopedia.

Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome, added it. He took the name from a Latin word meaning "to purify," for February was the month in which the Romans were purified for the religious festivals of the following months.

But Numa lacked "Februaris," as it was called, onto the end of the year. It wasn't until hundreds of years later that it found the place it occupies today.

In the meantime, the emperor Augustus swiped a day to add to August, the month named after him.

But the worst blow came in 1913, when, on Feb. 25, the federal income tax was made legal by the Sixteenth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

Here's what goes into the price of a PRESCRIPTION

You give the pharmacist a piece of paper. A little while later, he hands you a package of medication. What you get for your money is not just a bottle of tablets or capsules or liquid. It's a great real more. As follows:

RESEARCH

Thousands of man-hours and millions of dollars have been expended by the manufacturer to find the drug that will do exactly the job the doctor wants done. For every 20 drugs tested, at great expense, only one usually turns out right. Only after costly research . . . in the test tube, on animals, on human patients . . . is the product ready to go.

PRODUCTION

To mass-produce today's wonder drugs . . . so that all who need them may have them . . . requires the most fantastically complex equipment. Moreover, complex and costly procedures must be followed to make sure that safety and potency and efficacy are guarded every step of the way—from raw materials to finished medication.

AVAILABILITY

The finest drug in the world is useless if it's not available to the person who needs it—when he needs it. To deliver the newest drugs to every city and hamlet — overnight — the drug industry maintains a highly organized distribution network.

Strategically located manufacturer's depots . . . wholesaler's warehouses . . . thousands of men and women and vehicles—all play a vital indispensable role in getting every new lifesaving drug into the nation's pharmacies in the shortest possible time.

DISPENSING

To make sure he learns how to dispense your medication safely and accurately, the law requires your pharmacist to undergo 5 years or more of rigorous, costly education and training.

To do his job right, he must then invest thousands of dollars in stocking at least 3,000 different drugs, many of them rarely called for. He must also invest in a wide array of precision equipment—expensive equipment—designed for the proper storage, compounding, and packaging of each prescription.

Those are SOME of the things you get when you pay for a prescription. But over and beyond all these, you also get better health . . . speedier recovery from illness . . . fewer hospital bills . . . and an even longer life. They all add up to the undeniable fact that . . .
